Groupe 1 : Mardi 16h-18h, Mme PHAM THANH, s.5202 (Patio)

Through the study of literary, historical, journalistic, theoretical, and artistic documents, this C1-level course focuses on representations of American cities, in connection with roads and wilderness. In particular, the urban jungle will be analyzed as the site for poetic rebellions (Beat Generation,...), the crisis of modernity (literature of trauma,...), and contemporary social movements (Black Lives Matter,...). The course aims at providing students with advanced tools in written and oral comprehension as well as expression.

Groupe 2 : Mardi 8h-10h, Mme McNAMARA, A210 (Institut St Georges)

Many people's first encounter with Irish culture and history comes through the medium of the big screen. What ideas are being communicated through this medium and how does it influence our perception of Ireland? We will explore the history and culture of Ireland through the many representations expressed in various works, from The Quiet Man (1952) to Rebellion (2016).

LD26RM07 - An introduction to British Literature from the Middle-Ages to the Age of the Novel (Littérature britannique)

Groupe 3 : Mercredi 15h-17h, Mme HILLION, Mme BRIGHT s.3208 (Patio)

This course is an introduction to British literature. Starting from the Middle-Ages, the major British authors will be presented in their historical and cultural contexts. Passages from various texts and genres will be studied in class.

LD26RM08 - Mind your Body, Embody your Mind (Langue, culture et expression corporelle)

Groupe 4 : Jeudi 12h-14h, Mme DELAGE, Salle 004 Sport, 1 rue de Neuvic, 67100 Strasbourg (Meinau), (salle provisoire)

How can your body inflect the workings of your mind? How can the stories, musings and emotional states in your mind move your body? How can the gestures of the English language open up new pathways for expression in the bodymind?

By guiding you through personal compositions – improvised or not, verbal and/or non-verbal, in solo, duet or larger group structures – this course invites you to explore the creative junctions between body movement, dance, voice and the written word.

This is not a formal dance class, but select references to dance history (specifically American Postmodern) through iconography, video and texts by choreographers will now and then support these explorations.

All levels in dance and the performing arts (from beginner to experienced) are welcome.

Cours de niveau C1-C2 (3ECTS)

1 groupe au choix parmi 4

LD26RM09 - The adaptation of The Lord of the Rings, a quest intertwining the sublime and the spectacular (littérature britannique et cinéma)

Groupe 1 : Lundi 10h-12h, Mme De MATHUISIEULX, 5202 (Patio)

“It's a dangerous business, Frodo, going out your door. You step onto the road, and if you don't keep your feet, there's no knowing where you might be swept off to.” The general public knows The Lord of the Rings thanks to Peter Jackson's film adaptation. With it, the viewer dives into a fantasy universe known as Middle Earth and encounters its dwellers, such as Hobbits, magicians, dwarfs, elves or Ents. J.R.R. Tolkien's creation is now associated with epic adventures, magic landscapes and Manichean battles between good and evil.

Thus, has the filmmaker turned the novels into mere teenager entertainments, as the author's son once claimed? We shall examine this question throughout the year.

LD26RM10 - Old Norse influences on Gothic monsters and literature

Groupe 5 : Mercredi 17h-19h, M THEILLER, s. 131H (Institut Le Bel)

From Ann Radcliffe's dreadful shapeshifters (Salisbury Plains), to Matthew Lewis' ghastly ghosts rising from the dead (The Sword of Angantyr)—not forgetting Bram Stoker's infamous creature Dracula—many of the monstrous figures that left their marks on the Gothic genre were inspired by Norse mythology. The purpose of this class will be to explore how the rise of Gothic literature and the enthusiasm surrounding Norse sources coalesced throughout the late 18th-century and early 19th-century Britain. Analyzing Norse motifs in Gothic texts and novels, we will take an unconventional look at the genre and consider it with fresh perspectives—introducing for example the rising notion of ecogothic in our discussions.

LD26RM11 - The Late-Night Talk Show: Showcase of American culture (Civilisation américaine et télévision)

Groupe 2 : Mardi 12h-14h, M LIPSON, Amphi 6 (Institut Le Bel)

From well-known programs such as The Tonight Show (NBC, 1954-present) or The Daily Show (Comedy Central, 1996-present) to the more obscure The Arsenio Hall Show (Syndication, 1989-1994, 2013-2014) and A Little Late with Lily Singh (NBC, 2019-2021), late-night talk shows have played a pivotal and powerful role in American culture. The late-night time slot, initially dormant, would spawn one of the longest running TV programs (The Tonight Show), and become the perfect showcase for the biggest movie stars. It was the obligatory stop for any public figure with something to sell, be it book, album or, in the case of politicians, oneself. The genre even led to some serious Shakespearean drama when two princes in waiting, David Letterman and Jay Leno, vied to succeed the throne of the king of Late Night, Johnny Carson. During this course, we will look into the beginnings and history of late-night TV, its influence on American culture, and finally its evolution in terms of diversity and new formats.

LD26RM12 Contemporary Representations of Indigenous Peoples in North America (civilisation nord-américaine et cinéma)

Groupe 3 : Mercredi 9h-11h, Mme BAUDRY, 211 (Institut St Georges)

The reality of contemporary indigenous life is too often ignored, or understood through the distorted lens of the 19th century "Indian" we have all been introduced to by Hollywood. The course will provide an overview of that reality, focusing on forms of resistance both to the still difficult living conditions of many indigenous people, and to the problematic representation of these people in mainstream media. We will explore the works of contemporary indigenous musicians, visual artists, film makers, comedians, etc. and how they retell the history of North American colonization as well as challenge preconceptions of what it means to be indigenous today.

Cours de niveau C1 (3ECTS)

1 groupe au choix parmi 4

LD26PM04 - Women and popular culture (civilisation de l'aire anglophone)

Groupe 1 : Mardi 16h-18h, Mme ETTAOUI, TBD, s. 5ss01 (Patio)

This course examines women's many different relationships to contemporary popular culture focusing on various media (film, music, television, magazines). How do dominant messages in popular culture (mis)represent women's lives? Why is it important to look beyond images to investigate their context and different "ways of seeing" them? How do women (and men to a broader extent) consume, challenge and re-create popular culture? This course focuses on feminist and cultural studies theories in order to explore these questions, to discover what is meant by "pop culture" and to reflect on constructions of gender, "race", class, sexuality and ability.

LD26PM05 - Titre à déterminer (Civilisation US & UK et cinéma)

Groupe 2 : Mardi 8h-10h, Mme DESNAIN, Mme PHAM THANH, Mme DE MATHUISIEULX, s. 5ss01 (Patio)

LD26PM06 - High and low fantasy (analyse littéraire et "creative writing")

Groupe 3 : Jeudi 16h-18h, Mme DE MATHUISIEULX, salle à déterminer

"The realm of fairy-story is wide and deep and high and filled with many things: all manner of beasts and birds are found there; shoreless seas and stars uncounted; beauty that is an enchantment, and an ever-present peril." J.R.R Tolkien

This course aims at studying some canonical texts of high and low fantasy in the English-speaking world, from Beowulf to A Game of Thrones. It is time to unravel the secrets of witches, vampires, ghosts, fairies, and more...

LD26PM07 - The American Dustbowl in Literature and Photography (civilisation américaine et littérature)

Groupe 4 : Vendredi 10h-12h, M COULT, s. 5144 (Patio)

During the decade between the 1930s and 1940s, the United States suffered a series of economic and environmental disasters that had devastating effects on the American people. The Great Depression and the ecological crisis known as the "Dustbowl" combined to destroy the livelihoods of millions of Americans and led to poverty, famine, and mass migrations. These events would go on have lasting effects on US government, but also on the literary and visual arts. This course provides an interdisciplinary approach to the American Dustbowl by exploring historical, photographic, and literary documents dealing with the era. Students will be expected to read John Steinbeck's novella, Of Mice and Men, along with other documents that will be provided in class.

Cours de niveau C1-C2 (3ECTS)

1 groupe au choix parmi 4

LD26PM08 - An introduction to Shakespearean Drama (Littérature britannique)

Groupe 1 : Vendredi 10h-12h, M VUILLEMIN, 5ss01 (Patio)

This course will provide an introduction to the dramatic works of William Shakespeare and of his contemporaries. We will see how and where their plays were acted, and situate them within the historical and literary context of the English Renaissance—focusing on major critical debates about Shakespeare. The aim of this course is also, quite simply, to enjoy the texts themselves and use them as a basis to improve your written and spoken English.

LD26PM09 - Vampires vs. Zombies: American Monsters (Civilisation américaine et cinéma)

Groupe 2 : Jeudi 14h-16h, Mme GRASSY, 212 (St Georges)

"Dreams and beasts are two keys by which we are to find out the secrets of our nature." - Ralph Waldo Emerson

The recent revivals in all things vampire and zombie have elicited a number of explanations, from the economic to the psychological. This American Studies course examines the history and evolution of these two monstrous figures, their diverse representations in popular culture, and the numerous parodies and rewritings they have elicited. We will see how vampires and zombies have become social phenomena, and how their characteristics have merged in recent years.

In preparation for this class, you are encouraged to explore the canon of vampiric and zombie studies and watch and read as many works you can get your hands on as possible. Vegetarian vampires fans beware: this class might include some Twilight-bashing.

A bibliography will be available online on the moodle page for the class.

LD26PM10 - Rock Mythologies (Media culture, cinema)

Groupe 3 : Vendredi 16h-18h, M LEBOLD, 5139 (Patio)

The aim of this course is to study the trajectories, gestures, persona creations and cultural resonance of a few artists from the rock scene and media culture of the 1950s, 1960s and 1970s (including the Beatles, Bob Dylan, David Bowie, Andy Warhol and Elvis Presley).

Inspired by Star Studies, performance studies, semiotics and Jungian psychology, our approach will be to study how those artists come to reconfigure archetypal cultural roles and functions (hero, prophet, griot, shaman, trickster...) and form in the collective imagination a modern mythological pantheon that the culture uses to embody values, negotiate cultural and social tensions and interpret itself.

The sessions will include studies of texts, images, performances and videos.

LD26PM11 - "Going Global? US Sports History, Culture and Society since the 1950's"

Groupe 4 : Mardi 14h-16h, M. DOPPLER-SPERANZA, s. 5109 (Patio)

"Going Global?" will explore the sociocultural relevance of sports in the United States throughout the twentieth and into the twenty-first centuries. Primarily based on historical material, it aims to develop a comprehensive understanding of the United States as a nation of athletes and assess how its sporting culture helped embrace and challenge US hegemony in the world. Drawing from the press, literature, visual arts and moving images, this class will pay specific attention to cultural processes and artifacts in the late and post-Cold War decades in order to observe how globalizing sports highlighted increasingly visible inequities, such as those among racial, socioeconomic, and gendered lines. Every week, students are expected to read academic articles and listen to radio talk shows to engage the class in discussions and debate. They are also expected to complete an in-depth analysis of an athlete who changed the course of history. Knowledge of US sports history is not a pre-requisite.

Required readings:

- Dave Zirin. A People's History of Sports in the United States. 250 Years of Politics, Protest, People, and Play (New York: The New Press, 2009).
- There will be a reader available through Moodle. All the articles and books' chapters will be available in the course's page in a pdf format.

The Visual Arts in Britain, 1700-1900

Mercredi 10h-11h, Mme IBATA, 210 (St Georges)

The 18th and 19th centuries are often considered to be the golden age of British art, with unprecedented achievements in painting, landscaping and architecture. This course will present the intellectual and social context of this development, and introduce the major artists of the time.

Suggested reading:

Bruckmuller-Genlot, Danielle: Peinture et Civilisation Britanniques, Ophrys, 2000.

LG20HM99 (3ECTS): (2<sup>e</sup> semestre)

Reading Shakespeare as a lyric poet: the Sonnets and the canon, 1609-2021

Lundi 15h-16h, M VUILLEMIN, s. 5109 (Patio)

Shakespeare's Sonnets is one of the most well-known and the most beloved poetic collections in the English language. It is widely seen as some of the greatest poetry ever written both within and without the English-speaking world, as evidenced by the overwhelming wealth of scholarly works about it, not even mentioning the translations. Such unanimous appreciation, however, is relatively recent. In this class, the focus will be not just on the texts themselves, but also on the way they have been read, in the widest sense of the term (i.e. published, edited, commented upon, or even imitated) from the moment they were written to today.

We will explore how Shakespeare's canonical status as an author and a person was constructed, and how such canon-building had to do with specific cultural, social and political issues (especially in the nineteenth century) and the specific place of lyric poetry in that context. The reception of Shakespeare will also serve as a pretext to (re)discover some aspects of literary history that often go beyond national boundaries. Students will be expected to read and analyse extracts from works of and about literature (their contents, but also sometimes their material features) and, why not, to produce their own rewriting of a Shakespearean sonnet of their choice.
